http://www.google.com/hostednews/canadianpress/article/ALeqM5gkCR4V-Qrf3Q_R229QIFonzYw6Hg?docId=6751144

BEIJING, China — A U.S. commission that accused Beijing of restricting religious freedom is biased and is meddling in China's internal affairs, the Foreign Ministry said Wednesday.

Ministry spokeswoman Jiang Yu said Chinese citizens enjoy "complete religious freedom" despite the assertions by the U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom in a report issued last week.

In a statement, Jiang urged the commission to "abandon its prejudices, respect facts and stop intervening in China's domestic affairs by means including issuing reports."