

By Penny Young Nance

<http://www.foxnews.com/opinion/2011/05/20/coptic-christians-need-protection-help/>

Coptic Christians in Egypt, the largest contingent of Christians in the country, are under severe attack — so much so that the U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom announced just recently that Egypt made the list of “Countries of Particular Concern.”

That's not really a list anyone wants to be on: countries put on this list are some of the worst violators of religious freedom. But it's not enough. Calling a country out will not necessarily force them to change their behavior. A bully doesn't work like that.